

Blood was drawn only from adult female elk, bulls and calves were released back to the feedground.

A seronegative elk that was released back to Muddy Creek feedground.

Elk were loaded into a trailer live, to be shipped to a USDA inspected slaughter facility in Idaho.

Blood samples were sorted and bar-coded to be tested for brucellosis antibodies.